

Patrik Grandits

Patrik Grandits holds a Master's degree in Biology from the University of Vienna and has extensive international leadership experience across oncology, rare diseases and specialty pharmaceutical markets.

He is currently serving as Vice President and General Manager Germany for Crinetics Pharmaceuticals. In the past he served as VP and General Manager DACH at Apellis Pharmaceuticals, where he is responsible for building and scaling regional operations, managing significant P&L responsibility and preparing major product launches. Previously, he held senior leadership roles at Daiichi Sankyo, Novartis, Hospira and Allergan, where he led European oncology and specialty care business units. Throughout his career, he has managed cross-country organizations, overseen complex market access environments and executed launch strategies in highly competitive therapeutic areas.

He contributes commercial execution expertise and international market insight to the Board of Vaccentis AG.

